It is hoped that, with their coöperation, this exhibition will be even more successful than those of preceding years. The committees are not acting as jurors, but as friendly advisors.

FOREWORD

In preparing this circular, presenting rules for the Twelfth Annual Exhibition of Work by Cleveland Artists and Craftsmen, every effort was made to state regulations clearly. The rules are final. Every entrant is expected to read this circular through and to observe the rules set forth and the dates given for receipt of entry blank and receipt of objects entered.

THE JURY

With the Jury alone rests the decision as to which objects shall be accepted or rejected. Each decision will be based upon the artistic merit of the object under consideration.

The Jury has again been selected from non-residents who have been chosen because of their sympathetic knowledge of a wide range of artistic mediums. They act without compensation, to promote the cause of better art, and as a service to the Museum and their fellow artists in Cleveland.

LOCAL EMPHASIS

The exhibition offers artists an opportunity to interpret the city and its environs to the public.

CERTIFICATES OF MERIT

The Jury will award Certificates of Merit for first, second, and third honors in all classes in which the work offered merits such award, and such Honorary Mentions as they may think necessary.

TWELFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WORK BY CLEVELAND ARTISTS AND CRAFTSMEN, 1930

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY

1. The members of the Jury for the Twelfth Annual Show have been invited to serve the Museum and the artists of Cleveland in this capacity because of our belief that they are qualified to consider justly works of art in a wide range of mediums and in varying styles. The Jurors have been selected from a list of art authorities approved by the Trustees of the Museum.

2. It is the desire of the Museum that the Jury shall admit all works of art, regardless of class or school, which the Jurors believe to be of sufficiently high artistic quality to be worthy of a place in this exhibition.

3. The Museum leaves to the Jury the entire responsibility of deciding which works are to be included in the exhibition, and every object accepted will be suitably exhibited. The Museum selects Jurors from out of town because of the desire to have the works judged impersonally by Jurors not acquainted with local artists.

4. There are no qualifying or limiting conditions and no cases in which the Museum asks particular favors or leniency.

5. No works are to be exhibited except those accepted by the Jury, except as follows:

Former teachers of The Cleveland School of Art, who have retired from the school on pension, may be invited to submit one work each for the 1930 exhibition, which will not be subject to Jury action and will be entered as "exhibited by invitation and not in competition."

6. The attached circular gives the full particulars and instructions as sent to exhibitors and shows the classes under which all entries must be submitted.

7. It is recommended that the following procedure be followed by the Jury:

- A. Election of the Chairman.
- B. The men who handle the objects submitted for the Jury action will indicate the decision of the Jury on the attached tag after receiving direct instruction from the Chairman of the Jury only.
- C. The Clerks, who enter the decisions on the entry blanks, will likewise record on the entry forms the decision of the Jury upon instruction from the Chairman only.
- D. In each class the Jury is to award three certificates of merit, first, second, and third, if the work justifies such awards, and in addition may give a limited number of Honorable Mentions if in their judgment such further recognition is advisable.
- E. Commencing with the exhibition for 1929, no entrant will be eligible for the same award, in the same class, two years in succession—i.e., the artist who receives first in oil landscape in 1929 will not be eligible for the same award in the same class for 1930, but will be eligible for the same award in 1931.
- F. If in any class there are less than three entrants, it is recommended that no awards be given, unless the Jury feels that the work entered is so important that a reward is imperative.

METHODS OF HANDLING THE OBJECTS SUBMITTED AND OF RECORDING THE DECISIONS OF THE JURY

Following is the method proposed for handling the exhibit, based upon experience in former exhibitions. The Jury is invited to suggest modifications of the system if any change seems desirable.

1. Because of the large number of classes (36) and of the individual objects to be considered (1801 in 1929), and in the effort to save the time of the Jury, all of the work submitted is arranged by class, in advance of the Jury's arrival.

2. Either the Director, or a Curator assigned by him, will necessarily be present during all the Jury sessions to answer questions as to classifications and rules; but the Director or Curator shall not bring the works of art before the Jury nor discuss their artistic merits with the Jury.

3. In large classes the objects are arranged by the men in charge, in irregular order, with the intention of scattering the work of each artist, so that no two works by an artist will be considered consecutively. Experience shows that this is much fairer to the artist than where a large group by one artist is judged at one time, in which case the artist is in effect being judged against himself.

4. The actual object under consideration will be handled only by the men of the Superintendent's department. They will bring the objects forward, one at a time, for presentation and will be the only people in front of the Jury while the work is being judged. The head man will check on the card attached to each object, on direct order from the Chairman, its acceptance or rejection, or will leave unmarked those which are to be reconsidered (doubtful class).

5. The entry blanks are arranged in alphabetical order and in charge of Clerks who are thoroughly familiar with handling the exhibition, and they, on the word of the Chairman only, will record on the entries whether accepted or rejected, leaving the doubtful group until final decisions are rendered.

6. After the final decisions have been made in any one class, the objects will be spread out so that they can be conveniently seen, and the Jury will then make the awards for that class, giving a first, second and third, where the works included in the class justify these awards. The Jury is authorized to give one or more Honorable Mentions where in its opinion justice requires such additional awards. The awards will be recorded as provided in No. 4 and No. 5.

7. To avoid possible criticism and misunderstanding the Trustees have ruled that no comment by the Jury shall be transmitted to exhibitors. If in any case the Jury desires to make a written comment, this shall be transmitted in writing by the Director without discussion.

8. Work by students can only be considered when bearing a certificate from the teacher and head of the school, stating that the work was not done in classroom or under criticism or instruction. Students' work is not eligible for award except in the case of juniors or seniors regularly enrolled in The Cleveland School of Art or The Cleveland School of Architecture, or students of the same grade in other established non-commercial schools.

9. If any exhibitor has more than ten objects accepted in all classes (except as this rule is modified in the case of pottery and jewelry—see Special Instructions IV) the Jury will determine which objects, up to the maximum allowed, shall be exhibited; all others which have been accepted will be marked as "accepted but not eligible for exhibit" and will be withdrawn from the Museum with the rejected works.

Entrants in Jewelry or Pottery classes who have ten pieces accepted will be permitted five additional exhibits in other classes. If less than ten pieces of jewelry or pottery are accepted, the total in other classes may be increased. - F. No hand work, other than spotting, may appear on the print, except where it is a part of the accepted technique of the process.

VI. PRINTING

Examples of printing may be entered as five single items, or a number grouped on one mount, each mount counting as one entry. Mounts must fit Museum frames,  $14\frac{1}{4} \times 19\frac{1}{4}$  inches, or  $22 \times 28$  inches. The Committee will advise as to color of mounts.
